On the 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month in 1918, bells rang around the world.

The war was over. The fighting had stopped. The boys were coming home.

Bells across the globe will ring again today, 100 years after the signing of the Armistice and the end of World War I. On all U.S. Navy and Marine ships and installations, at landmarks around the country and from the towers of churches, they'll ring at 11 a.m. local time to honor those who sacrificed their lives to achieve that historic moment of peace.
